Few couples can claim they've known each other as long as Natasha Fagel and Brandon Beck. Growing up in the same area of Los Angeles afforded plenty of opportunities for the pair's paths to cross. They attended the same schools, the same summer camp – even “Mommy and Me” classes as toddlers. It wasn't until Natasha's senior year in high school, however, that the two finally became involved. “I wanted him to take me to the senior prom,” Natasha confides. “So I had a friend call him and tell him to ask me.” In the limousine together, the two were alone at last, and they shared their first kiss on the way to the after prom. “It was magical,” Natasha says, and Brandon agreed. Eight years later they were in a limousine again, only this time near a billboard that said, “Natasha, Marry Me!”
